It's time to accept a resonably good solution to the storage of high-level nuclear waste.

One component of this solution is to begin to accept waste packages at Yucca Mountain. To get things moving, it would be prudent to include monitored retrievable storage in the Yucca Mt. system. Higher quality waste such as spent fuel assemblies could be kept in the MRS area, pending possible future reprocessing treatment. Fission products from weapons waste, having little actinide content, should be committed to permanent burial.

We need a solution to the waste problem, if the nuclear option is to be viable and help with the global warming and resource problems.

Many of the enemies of nuclear power do not want a solution to this problem until the industry is brought to its knees and is so depressed that it could never to rise again.

Thank you.
